The Calendar said: "SOME OTHER TIME"

MIDOL

said: "NOW!"

TODAY, more and more women who once let the calendar dictate many of their activities have discovered how needless it is to live in dated dread of severe periodic functional pain.

You should be one of them, enjoying this new freedom. If you are not, get Midol before another month rolls around. For, unless you have some organic disorder demanding a physician's or surgeon's attention, Midol in all probability can help you "carry on" in comfort.

Most women who try Midol find it permits them to go through the days of menstruation physically and mentally carefree. Midol is offered for this sole purpose—easing the unnatural pain of a natural process. It acts quickly. In all but unusual instances it brings definite relief. Many women declare they have no pain at all—or even discomfort—since they learned to rely on Midol.

Get Midol, and "be yourself". Instead of favoring yourself, saving yourself, let Midol take care of the pain. A few Midol tablets should see you comfortably through your worst day. Drugstores have Midol on the counter in convenient purse-size tins.

—And the Jasmine Blooms at Home

Old man has had a walk in the region. It's a bleak scene along the catwalk to the Lake Michigan lighthouse off Michigan City, Ind.

But in our own backyards the jasmine's been putting on a show. This flourishing bush of the yellow variety was at its height the other day in the Chevy Chase garden of Mrs. C. M. Ludlum.

Up in Stillwater, Minn., the good Dr. Henry Van Meier has been "mushing in" to his patients on snow shoes. His car is parked out there between the snowdrifts.
